The Senator, Just Back Prom Buffalo, Tells of the Remarkable Impressive-ness of the Swearing In of the New President -No Great Pageant He Has Ever Witnessed Equalled It for Selemn Grandeur—Time Has Come, He Thinks, for Changes in Our Customs and Our Laws That Will Decrease Perils Which Beset Nation's Officials.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew has re-turned from Buffalo. He was among those who were near the bedside of the dying President, and who attended the admin istration of the solemn oath of office to Theodore Roosevelt, the nation's nev President. The Senator reached Buffalo at 9 o'clock on Friday morning to deliver an address during the exercises on Saturday, Railroad Day, at the Exposition It was expected that 160,000 excursionists would visit Buffalo and the Exposition on that day.

"I found that the whole population, visiting and resident, was horrified by the revulsion of feeling from the absolute confidence of the day before to the doubt caused by the relapse," said Senator Depew yesterday. "I went several times to the Milburn house. At 4 o'clock, although the report came that the President had railled, the committee of railroad men with whom I had been consulting decided to postpone the exercises for Railroad Day. On my visits to the Milburn house I found no especial alarm. What was apparently an extreme attack of indigestion was con-sidered to have been relieved. Later in the day almost the old hopefulness had its sway. Upon an evening visit, however, I found the gloom of a death chamber I met Senator Hanna, who was quite un-nerved, and he told me that the President

"I was among the men who were near Lincoln when he died and was by, also, when Garfield died. Those about Lincoln were in a wild rage for revenge. Garfield was so short a time President that beyond the general horror and sympathy there were no evidences of deep feeling. At the Milburn house on Friday night a stranger would have said that the Cabinet officers, the Judges, the Senators, and the distinguished men who were associated with President McKinley were members of his family and were feeling in his death the loss of a most cherished member. The polgnancy of the grief manifested was extraordinary and showed what a tremendous hold the President had on those who came in contact with him.

Secretary Root is not an emotional His severe training at the bar has taught him to curb his feelings and given him a marvellous control over his emotions. but at the inauguration of Roosevelt in an effort to make a simple announcement that she Cabinet desired the Vice-President to at once assume the Presidency Mr. Root's battle to prevent himself giving external evidence of grief intensified by its failure the broken sentences he uttered. I have witnessed most of the world's pageants in my time, where fleets and armies, music and cannon, wonderful ceremonials and costumes enchanted the onlookers and fired the imagination, but that all seems to me in recollection tawdry and insignificant in the presence of that little company in the library of the Wilcox house in Buffalo It was apparently a gathering of professional and business Americans, coming nastily from the ir vocations to the meeting

"There was an interregnum of a few ours in the Chief Magistracy of the republic. The long silence in the library which had become painful was broken by a few scarcely audible words of the Secretary of War. A brief pause and then the emphatic announcement by the Vice-President of the continuance of the policy of McKinley for the peace, progress, and honor of our beloved country lifted every one out of despair. Roosevelt, with his youth and his magnificent, athletic personality, and the terrible earnestness of his little speech, seemed to personify the indomitable vigor of that American conquest and industrial and commercial evolution, and its continuance, of which McKinley, in the public mind, was largely the creator and wholly the representative. In repeating the words of the Judge administ the oath. Roosevelt extended his hand over his head to the full length of his arm. He closely followed each sentence, and his ending seemed almost as if it was a salvo of

"That little company had only a few min utes before left the house of the murdered President, and now they were extending congratulations to his successor who had umed the greatest office which man can hold, and had become Chief Magistrate of the most powerful country in the world Commenting upon the act of the assassing at Buffalo Senator Depew said:

"It is singular that the United States possessing the freest Government the world has ever known, its Presidents, with the exception of Washington, all having come from the humbler conditions and the four years, in thirty-six years three of them should have been assassinated. Autocratic Russia is a hotbed of conspiracy against the Czars, yet only one ruler in Russia has been murdered in the period covering the life of the American Republic. The 600 years of the Hapsburg house and nearly as many of the Hohenzollern dynasty have been free from the tragedy of assassination. King Humbert, fell under the assassin's hand. The English throne has been free from these crimes for 1,000 years. In France in thirty years one of her Presidents has been assassinated; with the exception of Henry IV. none o' her kings or emperors. The immunity of rulers of Continental Europe is ascribed to the care of guards There are no special precautions surround-

English sovereign. "The murder of Lincoln was not the act of an Anarchist and was as deeply regretted by the South, whose wrongs Booth thought he was avenging, as by the North. Had Lincoln lived the reconstruction of the South on lines satisfactory to its intelligence would have come much sooner The assassination of a ruler has always defeated the purpose of the attack by intensifying the power of the Government assailed The assassination of Garfield was the crime of an addle-brained egotist seaking potoriety, without accomplices or sympathizers. And yet we can trace Guiteau's crime to the intense passions of factional strife of the period. "President McKinley was the most be loved of our Presidents. Beyond any of them, he possessed the affection of the whole American people. Parties and partisanship had ocased to have any enmity toward him personally. He was not only the best friend of the workingman and the wage-earner who ever filled the place of ruler of a great country, but they all knew it and so regarded him. Notwithstanding these facts, this most popular of Presidepte fell a victim to a conspiracy. His every public building and hundreds of ngs of a political school which, so of mourning are displayed. far as they dare, approve and applaud the crime. *The conditions which give comparative safety to European rulers and make the position of President of the United States the most hazardous place in the world, must be considered in the protection to be given in the future to our Presidents. Al! Continental Governments by concert of action locate, identify and exchange descriptions of Anarchists and Anarchist groups. They arrest them on the slightest pretext, and in various ways endeavor to make life main fied from these countries to find asy-lums only in Great Britain and the United States. They work a vigorous propaganda through their publications for use on the Continent. The Scotland Yard police keep the London Anarchists under constant sur-veillance. The Anarchist leaders in Russia are all foreigners, as with us, with the exception of one or two. The leaders in Great Britain order that no outrages be committed there. They know that an attempt on the life of the sovereign would lead to the expulsion of them all. "The Reds have discovered that in the dom that there is no law, Federal or State, under which anything worse can happen than brief imprisonment if unsuccessful, and execution only if successful, to the member of their society upon whom the lot falls to assassinate a President, a Governor, a Judge or a policeman. The chief tenets of the Anarchist organization being revolution of society by killing those who our President and have him as safe fron these assaults as European sovereigns! There is no analogy between a President who temporarily represents the people and executes their will and the hereditary rulers of Europe, but the Anarchists make no distinction

"In the first place, President Loubet of the French Republic does not attend public meetings, speak from the platform of railway cars, move around in an approachable and conspicuous way to fair and expositions, nor hold open levees for the shaking of hands. Whenever he ap pears he is guarded by secret police. They know his route and, themselves inconspicuous, keep a constant watch on the President and those near him. Our Presidents are in the habit of shaking hands with everybody who wishes wherever they temporarily stopped or have been of the President is so important to every interest of the country to have him con tinue this ceremony without restriction or limitation? The American people number 77,000,000. It would be almost impossible for a President in his four years in office to shake hands with 50,000 persons Considering that some one person in this insignificant proportion of our people might precipitate a tragedy that would plunge the whole country into grief and disturb commercial and industrial conditions, the question arises, Can we afford to continue to imperil our Presidents? Our Presidents, notwithstanding the danger must continue to travel and meet the people as heretofore with certain precautions and with changes in the functions which have been characterized as Presidential receptions.

We must begin at the fountain head and stop the reservoirs of European anarchy pouring into our country. Such certification of immigrants must be had as will establish a proper environment and association abroad before they pass our immigrant inspectors. Supplet ing this, there should be under proper safeguards the power lodged somewhere to expel known enemies of our laws and country. Legislation should also be adopted by the Federal Government and all States the President which fall out of the category of mere assaults and make such crime adequately punished.

ANARCH LEADER DODGES BLAME.

Pedro Esteve of Paterson on the Assass nation of President Mckinley.

The leading article in the number for Sept. 14 of La Questioone Sociale, the Socialist-Anarchist journal printed at Paterson N. J. is devoted to an explanation of the meaning of anarchy and Anarchists. The writer, Pedro Esteve, states that the article was originally written for publication in the New York Herald of vesterday The part relating to President McKinley's assassination is as follows:

"I do not know what idea guided the hand of Czolgosz against McKinley; I do not know whether or no Czolgosz is an Anarchist, and if he is, what his concep tion of the ideal is. Tolstoi, Ibsen, Zola have been called Anarchists and every one has his own idea of anarchy and that one idea comewhat different from our own What is known is that, given the political Constitution of this country, the life or death of McKinley would not have changed in the least the political and economic situation of the Republic and if he, Czoigosz has believed otherwise, it is due certainly not to the Anarchist principle, but to the campaign of the press and to all the politicians, Republican and Democratic, who have put forward McKinley, the former as the savior of the country, the latter as the man who was dragging it down to

"To my mind and to that of the other Anarchists, too, I, believe the policy of expansion pursued for some time in this Republic is not the work of McKinley nor of the Republican party, but an inevitable result of the development of capitalism. Cleveland would have done what McKinley d, and Bryan, or any other Democrat Republican who may come into power, llow the road apparently traces by McKinley, but really determined by the capitalists, because the point at issue is to open up new markets for their specueven though it be at the cost of nining the foundation on which lations, even though it be at the cost of undermining the foundation on which the Republic has been built.

"But so much has been said and is being said by politicians and by the press that it is owing to McKinley that Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines have become colonies of the United States; it has been often repeated that he was responsible the existence of the trusts; McKinley has been held up so often as the promoter of an imperialist policy, and the politicians and the 'yellow' journals have tried so much to have it believed that the Anarchists had an interest in having McKinley killed, that I should not be at all surprised if the instigators of Czolgosz's crime were the very gentlemen who are now shouting so much against anarchy and the An-archists, without any knowledge of what anarchy is, nor of what Anarchists do, nor of what they think.

SYMPATHY IN HALIFAX.

Union Jack at Half Mast References to Tragedy in Churches.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 15 .- In this military and ultra British city the signs of mourning for the dead President are to-day everywhere manifest and there is no doubt about the genuineness of the sorrow on the citadel. the chief British fort in the series of military works on this coast. The Union Jack flies at half mast and will remain so till after Mr. McKinley's funeral. On the Parliament Building, the Government House,

Many references were made to-day in Halifax churches to the sad event. Archbishop O'Brien, the head of the Roman Catholic Church in Nova Scotia, made a touching allusion at 9 o'clock mass to the death of the President. His Grace attributed the crime of Czolgosz indirectly to the growing infidelity and materialism of the age, to the banishment of God from the schools and to the increasing rush for gold and power on the part of the indus-trial combinations of capital. He asked his hearers to pray fervently for the Ameri-can people in this hour of distress and to add to their petitions a prayer that never again might such an awful crime be wit-nessed.

The Governor of Nova Scotia, speaking of the crime to a SUN reporter, said:

"For such as Czolgosz hanging seems almost too speedy and merciful a death—and gives them a certain dignity and bravado in the eyes of their untutored compatriots. Imprisonment for life and compatriots. Imprisonment for life and corporal punishment every six months might possibly have some deterrent effect and deprive them of a sense of martyrdom which it seems such criminals as he desire A Capt. J. "As a citizen of Canada and a former citizen of the Southern States, I greatly regret to hear the painful news. President McKinley by the wise policy he pursued, after being elected to the highest position in the gift of his fellow countrymen, did more than any other man to bring together again the North and South. Not since the war, over thirty years ago, has any President of the United States held a warmer place in the hearts of the people of the South."

R. L. Borden, M. P., leader of the Conservative party in Canada, said:

"Canada will join earnestly and reverently in the grief of our great sister nation. It seems to us that President McKinley stood for what was best and truest in the national life of the country which twice made him its first citizen. Mrs. McKinley:

DEAR Madam: With a heart full of sympathy for you I write to say that in all your great grief and deep sorrow you have the consolation that you have given much to your country and humanity. That great heart, now stilled in death, beat for the oppressed and the benighted of all lands, and that splendid brain fashioned better government for millions of earth's half-civilized races and brought success to the needy of distant lands.

Your good husband lived long enough to demonstrate to the world his great ability and his great goodness. He had won the admiration and the friendship of all who are admiration and the friendship of all who are not sworn enemies of law, order and decent government. His devotion to those dependent upon him, his loyalty to duty under all circumstances, his great mental grasp upon the affairs of the nation and the world his love of country and his countrymen to the imperilling of life stanp him as one of our greatest Presidents and grandest characters. NOW FOR PRIMARY FIGHTS.

FACTIONS IN BOTH PARTIES HAVE SCORES TO SETTLE.

But the Foley-Divver Wrangle Seems to Lead Them All in Hitterness - Most of Friction, Too, Is Confined to the Tammany Ranks-Republicans Have Some cided at the polls to-morrow, and most of them are of a character that will not attract much attention outside the districts in which they are being carried on. The most bitter of the fights are in Tammany Hall, in which such an amount of bad feeling has been aroused that it will take a long time to overcome. First of all in the interest that the public takes in them is the Tammany contest in the Second district, where the forces of the Sullivans are trying to oust ex-Judge P. Divver from the leadership and put in his place Councilman Big Tom Foley.

lammany politics of the lower part of the city for years, and it was thought that he was invincible. A dispute arose between him and Senator T. D. Sullivan over some matters of business and the fight against Divver was the result. Foley has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the one of the most conspicuous figures in the district for a great many years and he found it easy to gather a strong following around him. In the fight he has had the open and powerful aid of all the Sullivans. It has been said that if this fight results favorably to the Foley ticket Senator Sullivan will have complete control of all of the districts below Fourteenth street except that presided over by City Clerk Scully, who is not attached to any of the factions in the party. in the party.

In the fight it has been charged by each

In the fight it has been charged by each side that the other resorted to the most open and flagrant violation of the law in order to increase its vote. The courts have been appealed to by Foley to stop the colonizing which he says has been carried on by the other side, and a few names have been taken from the lists of carollad voters under the provisions of enrolled voters under the provisions the law. The Divver adherents have the law. The Divver adherents have de-clared that this appeal to the courts by the Foley forces was an admission of weak-ness and that he had permitted them to know in advance that he knew that he was

The followers of Mr. Divver have said The followers of Mr. Divver have said all along that they had the backing of Mr. Croker. Croker says that he never takes a hand in district fights. At the same time there has been a lot of talk lately about the growing power of the Sullivan element in the councils of the. Tammany organization, and it has been added that Mr. Croker has not been treated with that respect by the Sullivan element that he

It will be remembered that Senator Sullivan once said that Mr. Croker did not seem to understand that "it was easy to get votes for Sullivan, but hard to get them for Tammany in the lower East Side of the city.

All the time there are tales of the coming rearrangement of the forces in Tammany and there have been so many of these that some folks have about given up these that some folks have about given up although these that some loss have about given up hope of seeing anything done, although there are many who think that the Wigwam is on the eve of a great revolt that will drive Mr. Croker from power.

Another very bitter fight is that the friends of J. J. Frawley are making against Councilman Ryan in the Thirty-second district. The feeling there runs almost district. The feeling there runs almost as high as it does in the Second, although less has been known of the situation by the general public. In this fight the adherents of each of the men who are leading the struggle have made an appeal to the voters on high moral grounds, saying that the others intend to turn the district that the others intend to turn the district over to the gambiers and other disorderly persons if they are successful. The op-ponents of Mr. Ryan also charge that he has not given the attention to the district matters he ought to, and that the mem-bers of his district committee have never been consulted about the manner in which has got the vote out for the ticket at ery election. He thinks that there is something in this argument that ought to appeal to the voters, for he says that the

to appeal to the voters, for he says that the vote can't be kept up and got to the polls by any leader who does not give his attention to the management of the district affairs.

The fight against Isaac A. Hopper in the Thirty-first is an old story. Mr. Hopper took the leadership away from Commissioner of Jurors Welde in 1898, and every time there has been a primary election sioner of Jurors Weide in 1898, and every time there has been a primary election since then he has had to fight to keep it. Mr. Welde's interests and aspirations this year are in the hands of E. G. Levy, who is the anti-Hopper candidate for leader. Mr. Hopper's friends complain that since he has been leader he has not had the proper kind of support from the authorities of Tammany Hall, and that the result has been that he has not been able to get the patronage the district was entitled to, while his enemies have not had any trouble in getting all they wanted. titled to, while his enemies have not had any trouble in getting all they wanted. Mr. Hopper is a large contractor, however, and he has been able to find work for a number of his friends on the contracts that he has in hand, which include some that he has in hand, which include some of the tunnel work.

In the Twenty-fourth district Max Steiner has begun and carried on a strong fight against the leadership of President Maurice Holahan of the Board of Public Improvements. This is balanced on the other side of town by the fight that Ex-Assemblyman Minton is making for the leadership of the Twenty-third against Ex-Police Inspector McAyov, who represents the interests of McAvoy, who represents the interests of Corporation Counsel Whalen. The bitterest of the fights in the Re-publican ranks is that in the Democratic Seventh, where the friends of Leader Seventh, where the friends of Leader Miller are trying to do up ex-Alderman Hackett once and for all. There have been arrests and all sorts of moves in this fight, and Mr. Hackett has been charged with putting dead men and non-residents, Democrats and others on the enrollment lists, in order to swell his following. He in turn has denounced Mr. Miller for the same tactics, and each side has gone to the courts. The feeling between the two factions is very bitter, and there will be a hard fight at the polls.

In the Twenty-linth district Frank H. Partridge is trying to take the leadership.

In the Twenty-fifth district Charles A. In the Twenty-fifth district Charles A. Hess has made a strong effort to take the leadership away from Macdougal Hawkes, who succeeded him in it last fall. Mr. Hess gave way at that time because of the opposition to him, and it was understood that the selection of Mr. Hawkes was to end all the troubles in the district. Within a month after he took control there was an outbreak and it has been kept up ever since. By Mrs. Caroline Atwater Mason Author of "AlWoman of Yesterday." "A Wind Flower." "The Quiet King." etc.

FOUR FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS

For the first time in the English language, the exact and authentic facts concerning Charlotte de Bourbon are to be disclosed. The hitherto unknown life of this exquisite, mysterious figure has been made the subject of a historical novel of intense dramatic interest. The story of Charlotte who, though a French princess and the abbess of a Roman convent, became the wife of the Dutch hero, has never been told
